

Parent Letter for Wisconsin State-Allowed/Ineligible Accommodations Notification:
The ACT Plus Writing and ACT WorkKeys for Student with Disabilities

Dear Parent or Guardian:

As part of the Wisconsin statewide assessment system, your 11th grade student will take the ACT Plus Writing test and the ACT WorkKeys test this spring. These tests measure what your student has learned and will provide information about your student's readiness for more education after high school or entry into a career. The scores from the ACT can be used for many purposes such as entrance into college and some technical schools, scholarship applications, and National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) eligibility. Your student can also earn a National Career Readiness Certificate (NCRC) from the WorkKeys assessment. This certificate is used by some employers to make sure prospective employees have the skills necessary for the job they are applying for.

To be able to use these scores for the reasons mentioned above, your student must take the test under certain conditions as determined by ACT, Inc. and the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction. Some accommodations such as sitting in the front of the room or taking the test individually are called locally approved accommodations. These locally approved accommodations are available to all students (see definition of locally approved accommodation below). The school can provide these without any approval from ACT. These scores are college reportable and can earn the national certification.

Other accommodations, ACT-Approved accommodations, are only for students with disabilities who have an Individualized Education Program (IEP) or 504 plan. These accommodations must be applied for by completing some forms and sending documentation to ACT for approval. With your permission, your student's school will complete these forms for your student prior to testing. Per Wisconsin DPI policy, a student with disabilities should have the paperwork filled out and submitted to ACT for ACT-Approved accommodations before considering State-Allowed accommodations. Scores from ACT-Approved accommodations are college reportable. An ACT-Approved accommodation allows students with disabilities a way to take the test without changing what the test measures or giving anyone an unfair advantage, but yet gives them the supports they need because of their disability.

Another type of accommodation called a State-Allowed accommodation can be provided to students with disabilities who did not receive approval from ACT. However, these scores are not college reportable and will be used for state reporting only. Please consider all of this information before making any decision to have your student test using accommodations, especially non-college reportable State-Allowed. Your permission is required. Important information about your student's learning and readiness for post-high school education and careers can be gathered through taking these tests with State-Allowed accommodations, but there are limitations that you should be aware of.

Students with disabilities who have an IEP or 504 plan can earn the National Career Readiness Certificate from the WorkKeys assessment by using accommodations also. Requests for these are not submitted to ACT but are decided upon by the local school district. Information supporting the need for these accommodations must be gathered by the school and kept on file for one year. Accommodations that make the scores ineligible to receive the national certificate include: translation or interpretation of test items, allowing the use of dictionaries with word definitions, or allowing the use of manipulatives or math tables.

The information above is a brief summary of ACT accommodations. Please refer to the websites listed below for more information and discuss these decisions with your student's school counselor, teachers or school administration.

Useful definitions:

Locally Approved Accommodations: The student must test with standard time, must not receive additional breaks, and must use a regular type (10-point) test booklet. Testing must occur on the initial or makeup test date and the accommodations must be consistent with the student's plan on file at the school. In addition, the accommodations must not disrupt or afford an advantage over other students

ACT-Approved Accommodations - Result in ACT scores that are fully reportable to colleges, scholarship agencies, and other entities in addition to being used for state testing purposes. Only students with professionally diagnosed and documented disabilities and who receive accommodations in school should apply for ACT-Approved accommodations.

State-Allowed and Ineligible Accommodations - Result in ACT and ACT WorkKeys scores used only for state testing purposes. The results earned are not college reportable and do not earn the NCRC. State-Allowed accommodations are only available to students with disabilities who did not receive approval for ACT-Approved accommodations or English Language Learners who receive supports in school.

Wisconsin State-Allowed Accommodations Notification for Students with Disabilities: The ACT Plus Writing and ACT WorkKeys

NOTE: This document must be completed for all students who will participate in the Wisconsin State Assessment System using State-Allowed Accommodations with The ACT Plus Writing and/or Ineligible Accommodations with the ACT WorkKeys. ACT scores earned with State-Allowed Accommodations will NOT be reported by ACT to colleges, scholarship agencies, or any other entities and will be used for state accountability purposes only. ACT WorkKeys scores earned with Ineligible Accommodations are NOT eligible for National Career Readiness Certification (NCRC). For additional guidance with decision-making regarding State-Allowed Accommodations, please refer to documents and manuals found at: <http://www.act.org/aap/wisconsin/act.html>, and <http://oea.dpi.wi.gov/assessment/ACT/accommodations>.

Do NOT use this form to apply for ACT-Approved Accommodations.

State-Allowed/Ineligible Accommodations may be provided to:

- Students with disabilities who have Individualized Education Programs (IEP) or Section 504 Individualized Accommodation Plans (IAP) and who do not meet or only partially meet ACT's eligibility requirements for testing with ACT-Approved Accommodations. Applications for ACT-Approved accommodations should be submitted prior to consideration of the State-Allowed accommodations. Failure to request ACT approval of accommodations for students with disabilities may raise concerns related to disability-based discrimination.
- English Language Learners (ELL) with English language proficiency levels 1 through 5 who receive linguistic supports in school may request State-Allowed/Ineligible accommodations. For more information about ELL participation in state content assessments, go to: <http://oea.dpi.wi.gov/assessment/ELL>.
